After having co-founded two companies in the energy sector (Energies in 1979 and Sithe in 1983, in partnership with Compagnie Générale des Eaux), Pâris Mouratoglou created SIIF in 1991, dedicated to the production of wind and solar electricity.

Renamed EDF Energies Nouvelles after EDF entered into the capital, the company was listed on the stock exchange in 2006 before its 100% takeover by EDF in 2011.

In early 2012, he left the Board of Directors of EDF Energies Nouvelles and cofounded with David Corchia EREN (Economie des ressources Naturelles). EREN's ambition is to make available reliable and competitive technologies that serve the economy of natural resources and energy transition.

Very recently Total SA entered into the capital of EREN.
